

Golf News for Wednesday, December 10, 2008 | People

Bolingbrook (Ill.) Golf Club student Jeanne Cho-Hunicke earns her LPGA card

BOLINGBROOK, Ill. -- Jeanne Cho-Hunicke, a former contestant on the Golf Channel's "The Big Break V: Hawaii", and a student of Bolingbrook Golf Club Director of Instruction Carl Rabito, earned a full exemption to play on the 2009 LPGA Tour at the recent LPGA Final Qualifying Tournament in Daytona Beach, FL. Cho-Hunicke, who began working with Rabito in October, marks the twelfth student of Rabito to earn a full exemption on a major professional golf tour. Earlier this month, Greg Towne qualified for the 2009 European Senior Tour.

Cho-Hunicke, a resident of Longwood, FL, shot a seven-under-par 353 to finish in a tie for 15th at the qualifying tournament. Just 21 players earned an exemption on next year's tour. This was her fourth attempt at qualifying, and she gives Rabito credit for getting her through.

"Carl played a huge role in my preparation," said Cho-Hunicke. "He put his heart into my game, led me the right way and more importantly, he really believed in me. We worked on each area of my game and everything peaked at the right time!"

Cho-Hunicke will join fellow LPGA Tour players and Rabito students Jeong Jang, Meena Lee and H.J. Choi next season.

"I was very impressed with Jeanne's performance," said Rabito. "Given the short time we've worked together, she's really worked hard to make the changes that we felt were important for her to be successful."

Rabito, one of 43 PGA Master Teaching Professionals and a GOLF Magazine Top 100 Instructor, and his staff, who have called Bolingbrook Golf Club home since 2004, work with a number of touring professionals and top-ranked amateurs. An expert in human anatomy, physiology and kinesiology, Rabito's unique approach to the golf swing ties together the student's physical abilities with specific body movements and swing mechanics to make a solid, repeatable golf swing.

About Bolingbrook Golf Club:

Bolingbrook Golf Club, designed by noted architect Arthur Hills, is an upscale, 18-hole championship golf course owned by the Village of Bolingbrook and operated by KemperSports. The 76,000-square-foot clubhouse features a state-of-the-art pro shop, casual and fine dining, corporate meeting spaces, banquet facilities, executive locker rooms, men's and women's lounges and a fitness facility. The Golf Academy at Bolingbrook Golf Club is the area's premier practice center, offering a huge bent grass tee that accommodates 70 hitting stations, target greens, short game area and professional instruction. For more information, visit <http://www.bolingbrookgolfclub.com>. Tee time reservations are accepted 14 days in advance by calling 630.771.9400.

Contact:

*Mike Williams, PGA Head Professional/ Assistant General Manager
630.771.9400, mwilliams@bolingbrookgolfclub.com*