

One of the 43 PGA Certified Master teaching professionals in the United States and one of Golf Magazine's Top 100 teachers, Carl Rabito is a nationally certified strength and conditioning specialist. Rabito's philosophy of "Structure Governs Function" deals with how a person's anatomical makeup influences one's golf swing mechanics and one's golf swing related injuries. He has been effectively combining his extensive knowledge of the human body with the game of golf for more than 20 years. In addition to Rabito's private golf instruction, he also instructs many of the top PGA, LPGA, Nationwide and Champions tour players. Rabito's unique approach to golf has won him accolades and attention far outside the golf world.

Rabito's unique approach to the golf swing has him endorsing the revolutionary swing trainer, Perfect Connexion. In June, 2008, Rabito was the cover of Golf Tips Magazine. His article on Faults and Fixes highlights his revolutionary approach to golf swing mechanics.

Rabito currently teaches in Chicago and Orlando, and is expanding his influence with upcoming new golf academies and institutes in central and southern states. Additionally, Rabito will be launching a new interactive web at www.rabitogolf.com and has several planned media appearances, including NBC's Today Show. He is currently working on a revolutionary new golf instruction book stressing the proper biomechanical way to hit a golf ball.
